

The Punk as Pussy EP

from DSICO – that no-talent hack

Pulping sounds, punning pop into new directions. (The Wire)

Sonic hooligan specialising in bootleg mash-ups and mutant karaoke. (Ministry of Sound)

Is this pure crap or pure genius? I'm leaning towards the latter. (Revolver)

Sydney's master of bastard pop takes a sharp electro scythe to some classic pop favourites – including tracks by Nirvana and Lionel Ritchie - in his first release for 12 Apostles. This limited edition release exemplifies the perverse sense of the absurd that pervades Dsico's work. Pop gone skewed.

Track listing: smells like electro cause u know just what 2say crazy 4 moroder in love 100% hot youth teens
taste my champagne

Dsico's mashups and bastard pop tracks have helped to define the genre: cut up, glitched up musical collages that have mainstream pop idols going head to head in remixes of unlikely proportions.

Highlights of his recent European tour include packed shows at Londons Bastard club and Hamburg's Colden Pudle. Press includes The Wire (UK), Runoré (Italy), SPIN (US), Rolling Stone (US), Wired (US) Daily Telegraph (AUS), and a top 10 single in New York's Village Voice chart. His tracks feature regularly on Australia's Triple J and London's XFM.

This is the second release from 12 Apostles, a record label established with the expressed aim of issuing 12 releases on 12-inch vinyl, each with an issue of 1,200 records. 12 Apostles are committed to working with only the most inspirational and innovative artists and have no pre-set criteria as to acceptable styles or approaches. Centred on Bow, London, and Bondi, Sydney, 12 Apostles works with an international network of collaborators.
